A low-angle photograph of the bell tower of the Cathedral of Saint Dominic in Split, Croatia. The tower is a tall, multi-tiered structure made of light-colored stone, featuring numerous arched windows and classical columns. It is set against a clear blue sky. To the left, a rough stone wall is visible, and to the right, a modern building with a glass facade is partially seen. In the foreground, a dark, textured stone wall runs across the frame.
